

Sualeha Siddiq Shekhani is an Assistant Professor at Centre of Biomedical Ethics and Culture (CBEC) at Sindh Institute of Urology and Transplantation. She holds an undergraduate degree in Social Sciences from SZABIST (2014), with a major in Psychology. She also has a Master's in Health Policy and Management (HPM) from Aga Khan University, Karachi, and a Master's in Bioethics from the Sindh Institute of Medical Sciences (SIMS), Karachi.

Her work interests specifically are situated within the domain of qualitative research. She has published papers in the area of bioethics, and intersection of social sciences and health during her time at the centre. She teaches in the academic sessions held at CBEC and also conducts workshops in areas of research and public health ethics across Pakistan.

She is a member of Ethical Review Committees of Ziauddin University, Karachi and SIUT, Karachi. She is also a core member of the recently formed group, South Asian Bioethics Community (SABC), which consists of early career scholars and researchers in bioethics and related fields within the region.